

As from April 2009, the Sanitary Division at Italian port/airports have implemented a new requirement on all inbound shipments. Importers will need to certify that their shipments do not include any product against the mould and humidity or moisture absorbing bags.

If these were included in the shipment, this will need to be declared and declaration will need to be accompanied by analysis certificates with the composition of the product, certifying that this does not contain Dimethyl Fumarate. The certification must be provided by an accredited UNI CEI EN ISO/IEC 17025 Laboratory and a legalized translation into Italian language might be required. Of course, this also applies to the "anti-mould" bags/sachets that are placed in containers/lift vans by the movers to inhibit mould during transit. It is responsibility of the origin agent to provide the required certification together with the bill of lading.

Declaration forms will be provided by the Italian Agent.
